THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1879

Hon. Henry Hartzog, one of the most practical and influential of the representatives from Barnwell Courty, died at his residence, two miles from Bamberg, on I is. Saturday morning, after an illness of two days. Mr. Hartzog was a most excellent gentleman, and his death will be regretted wherever he was known.

Since our last issue about fifty new cases of yellow fever have been reported in Memphis, and the disease is now admitted to have become epidemic there. The citizens are flocking from the place in vast numbers, and the prospect is very gloomy for its future. Death stares those who remain in the face, while utter financial ruin is ahead for a large portion of those who flee. There is from present appearance nothing but gloom and depopulation ahead of this once fair and prosperous metropolis.

The Gainesville Eagle very pertinently propounds the question: "Can a man with money and friends be hung in Georgia?" Our contemporary answers this in the negative, and we fear the same answer would be correct if the tertory was extended to embrace this whole country. It is becoming frightful to see how crime can be committed with immunity by those who are willing to spend a little money in securing an acquittal. Scarcely a day passes that we do not meet with instances of fearful murders in different parts of the United States, and yet hangings are very rare occurrences. It is time for the officers of the law, from Judges down, to do their duty. Juries should convict where guilt is proven, and then a certain hanging should follow the verdict

Judge David C. Humphreys, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, died at his residence in Fairfax County, Virginia, on Saturday, the 12th inst. He was the Judge who ruled in the Patterson case that a United States Senator was free from arrest during the session of Congress upon charges of bribery and corruption. This decision was purely partisan, and the memory of the departed Judge will pass to oblivion beneath the cloud of contempt which he raised for himself throughout the whole country. It is not thought that Mr. Hayes, with all of his acquaintance with the corrupt politicians of the day, will be able to nominate a worse man as his successor, and if he does Congress will most certainly not confirm him.

A dispatch to the News and Courier of the 17th instant, says that important changes are to be made in the Greenville and Columbia Railroad very soon, and, upon inquiry, we hear that the change will consist in the appointment of a new Superintendent to take the place of Col. Dodamead, who has resigned and leaves the road the first of August. We hope this report is incorrect, for Col. Dodamead has proven, in every respect, eminently qualified for the post he has held for the past five or six years, and we would dislike to see him retire. We may, however, rest assured that a good man will be substituted in his place if he should retire, for General Connor will have the selection of the new Superintendent. Whether any other changes are to be made, report doc not answer.

A telegram from Albany, New York, and there was the wildest excitement for a few moments. A man who gave his name as Henry Evans was arrested on board this morning on suspicion of being the person who caused the explosion." It really does look like all of the lawlessness of the country does not reside South of Mason and Dixon's line. The Times or Tribune either might preach a sermon over this attempt to destroy several hundred persons, simply for the fun of an explosion, which would be as interesting and powerful as any of their discourses on the "bloody shirt" horrors of the South. The only trouble, we presume, is that the crimes committed in their midst are frequently so beingus that it would be impossible to do the subject justice, and therefore they do not undertake the hopeless task, but ply their lectures to the South over cases which they feel equal to the task of properly commenting upon.

The Washington Post shows how much it knows of the agricultural problem in the following paragraph, which it offers in the way of a consolatory prophecy : It should reconcile the average reader to the intense heat which we are now eaduring to reflect that, without it there could be no corn. A hot Summer means an abundant corn crop, and plenty of that cereal will give the cocatry cheap whisky. This should be satisfying to the natural man.

Our contemporary should remember that heat is only one of the esanntials for a good crop year, and that a sufficient quantity of moisture is equally necessary. Therefore, as there have been very long and widespread droughts throughout the corn-growing section, it is likely to result in a short crop, and the fact that heat is one of the elements of production, does not make us reloice at its presence when the other necessary elements are absent. Our contemporary had as well go to a hungry man who has plenty of fire but no dough, and con-gratulate him upon the fine bread he will have. Heat is one of the necessary elements in making good bread, but it does not amount to much without the dough lo bake; so it is that heat will not make much corn without it is accompanied by a good amount of moisture.

A tolegram was received last night from Hon. J. C. Robertson, brother of an Sanstor Robertson, of South Carolina, dated Chicago, stating that son of the exsonator, usuped T. S. Robertson, was shot. The dispatch contained notling more definite than this. Mr. Robertson, who is at the White Sulphur Springs, was informed by telegraph of the news.—Warkington Post July 17th,

The Southern vote in the National Republican Nominating Convention is still a source of discord among the stalwarts. This vote is the balance of power in the party, and, if admitted into the Convention, will control the nomination. There is a proposition to refuse admission to the Southern delegations, and this programme is favored by many prominent men in the party, but is opposed by the leaders who expect to utilize this vote to assist in their nomination. Blaine obtained the bulk of the Southern vote in 1876, and calculates that he will be able to held it in 1880. John Sherman thinks that he will be able to carry the Southern vote in the Convention of 1880, by giving his Treasury appointments to the most disreputable elements of the Southern Republican party. The friends of Grant are of the opinion that he will be able to carry the Southern delegations.

the party in the North and West will be very much disgusted to see that the nomination has been dictated by the representatives of the ignorant and corrupt portion of the party, and that too the portion which will not give a single vote in the electoral college. The Radicals have been making a great deal of noise against the solid South, and well may they give expression to their alarm. The solid South presents the handwriting upon the wall to Republicanism. It announces the death of the party of hate and usurp ation. Henceforth the Democracy will be gainers by the solid South. It will gain votes on the positive side of the problem, and on the negative side will

A special dispatch to the New York Sun from Washington, under date of July 18, makes the following statement. which interests the people of South Carolina, for we have no doubt that there is some foundation for the information affection within their ranks.

There is to be a sweeping change in There is to be a sweeping change in the Federal officers in South Carolina. This change will soon be announced. Certain South Carolina Republicans have been in this city within the last few days, representing that South Carolina could be carried for the Republicans in 1880 in be carried for the Republicans in 1880 in case the right kind of Federal officeholders are placed in authority. Those now in place are men who are timid and lukewarm in their Republicanism, and have not the requisite backbone to stand up against the tissue-ballet frauds and intimidating processes of the chivalry. What is needed, these Republicans say, is a class of men brave counts to enforce is a class of men brave enough to enforce the national election in the face of death intimidation and personal insult. It is claimed that the present Federal office-holders in that State are either overawed by the Democrats who are now in power, or else have formed affl! intions with them that destroy their party usefulness.

There is no doubt that the Republican leaders have been seriously contemplating a movement for the resuscitation of the party in this State, but the above announcement is no doubt premature, for if attempted now it will fail. The new Saturday. Touching the bulb of the thermometer with the hand made the colleges appointed to carry out the programme would be rejected by the Democratic Senate, which would restore the present incumbents. The administration Sunday afternoon Winasboro' was visiwill most probably not begin this change until after the adjournment of the next session of Congress, when it could easily bery. At one time a hurricane was

We would not point out the peculiarities of this case except for the fact that the New York Radical papers place no limit to the lies and abuse they heap upon the South, in consequence of which we occasionally like to give our contemporaries of that city a liveness of that the lies and severely, though not fatally, injured. contemporaries of that city a liceness of not fatally, injured.

In explanation of this one of the jury said to a reporter of the Herakl that two of the jurymen were at the first disposed to bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree, but after a general conversation which the jury had as to the effect of the evidence, they voluntarily joined their colleagues in returning a verdict of murder in the first degree.

GREENVILLE, July 18. An important meeting of the trustees

> It is known throughout the State that owing to the great difficulty of collecting the codowment subscribed within the last five or six years, or even the interest on the bonds given for current expenses, the Faculty of the University resigned their several chairs at the close of the last session to enable the trustees to effect, if possible, a more substantial organization. At the annual meeting of the trustees in Greenville, during the recent Commencement week, the "sitt tion" was thoroughly discussed, but only initiative steps could octaken. The board, after holding many anxhous sessions, adjourned to meet again in Columbia, on the 15th instant. The members in attendance were Mossis, G. R. Wells, J. C. Smith, W. C. Lindsay, J. A. W. IN MEMORIAM.

Entered into rest, Friday night, July 4th, 1879, in the 66th year of her age, Mrs. ELEANOR ST. LAHR BIGWN, wife of the late Mr. Daniel Brown, one of Anderson's most honored and use-fol citizens. Off in the dawn of life's: ruling the Master Brown, one of Anderson's most honored and usefol citizens.

Off in the dawn of life's: ruing the Master summons His servents from earth to Paradise; betimes they fall asleep in the heat and strife of the mountide; rarely is it permitted them to linger iil the peare and quiet of the closing day. And when we are called upon to mourn the departure of one who has almost reached the attotted span by a life 'hid in Christ with God,' neceless and vain is the effort to calogize. Such a life is its own encondum and exemplar. The object of this sketch is rather to present a sainted character for emulation to others who may be tolling the weary ascent heavenward. Already "her praise is in all the Churches," her name "written in the Lamb's book of life;" she has passed triumphantly through the dark velley, and now enjoys the rest that remaineth for the people of took. Having been born in the faith of the Protestant Episcopal Church, at the early age of fifteen years she gave horself to Christ, renewing then her baptismal yows in the holy rite of confirmation. And thus her life was one of continued growth in grace, and to its close she remained deveted to her Church and work in the Heavenly Master's vineyard. It was principally through the influence and earnest endeavors of Mrs. Brown that Grace Church was built in 1800, from which time she was the controlling spirit of the Parish; and so long as strength permitted, she was never found alsent from ler accustomed scat in the Church she loved so well durring its holy and beantiful services. And such consistent, dovoted attendance upon Divine worship was not the least among those awet, gentle influences and examples which she exercised upon all with whom she was thrown. Her life was characterized by the fruit of the Spirit, "love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meckness, temperance," and her's was that "pure religion and undeficied, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unported the was insur heaviest, her christian fortitude and resignation beamed brightest. Who could have witnessed her long, weary months of patient suffering, only waiting for the final summons; or listened to her trembling, subdued tones while she gave her connected and blessings to the loved ones who ministered so fatthfully and untiringly to her every temperal want, or heard the whisperings of a voice already attined to a melody not of this earth, blessing and praising Jehovah for His manifold mercles, despite the acute affletion He had sent upon her, without feeling that the herole ages of Faith have not wholly test, and that we yet have saints among is "of whom the world is not worthy?"

But at last the summons came for her to come up higher, and as she lived, peacefully and calmity, so she passed from death to Hfe etermal! And after the spirit had taken its disembodied flight, an expression of inexpressible serenity impressed itself upon her placid face and lipe, and lingered there, speaking more cloquently than any words the emotions of the soul released from its fetters and entering the realms of the blest.

Yes, she is gone! well beleaved Mother, Sixer and Friend. tone, and yes with us; freed from the palmid bondage of the field, yet abides with us in memory and love. The good aver die. She leaves us the rich legacy of a life of good works, and her spotiess character will be the carnest of our endeavors to initate and attain. In contemplating such a gentle, self-sacrificing, suffering life, how swedy do those words fall upon our ears from thexed are the dead who die in the Lord: even so, sailth the Spirit, for they rest from their labors and their works do follow them." And in the language of that the sullime Burial Service which consigned her to the earth, well may we give hearty thanks to Almighty God for the good example of our departed friend, in common with "all those Thy servants, who, naving finished their course in faith, now rest from their labors."

MR. F. G. MASSEY having purchased the Patent Right for COSTON'S GIN SHARPENER, for Pickens, Oconee, Anderson and Abbeville Counties, and for Hart County, Ga., and having formed a copartnership with him for the use of this Patent, I am now prepared to sharpen your gin saws better and cheeper than you have ever had it done before. This Gin Sharpener is superior to any that has been used in this country, and does the work better than it can possibly be done by hand. I will travel through the country and sharpen your Gins at your houses, or you can bring them to me at Anderson C. H. Send in your orders at once, and be prepared for the cotton season. I am also prepared to do any other work that may be needed.

1 GIN OWNERS

COTTON PLANTERS.

Vou are respectfully invited to call on us and examine the samples now on hand of the celebrated Daniel Pratt Gin Co.'s Gin, Condenser and Feeder, which are far superior in points of durability and excellence to any other Machines now being offered to do the same kind of work. We call your attention to the annexed certificate of Mr. E. B. Rice, of Belton, S. C., whe has been using one of our Gins for the past two seasons; and in addition we refer you to the following gentlemen who have our Gins and Condensers in use: in use:

Messrs. B. A. Davis, Girard & Bolt, J. B.
Sitton, James B. Pruiet, Waddy Burns,
Harris, Drake & Co., C. K. Williford, MeGill & Hutchinson, Joshua Jamison, G. G.

Messas, McCrilly & Taylor, agents Daniel Pratt Gin Co., Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sirs—The 60-Saw Pratt Gin bought from you in the fall of 1877 has been thoroughly tested since that time, and has given entire satisfaction. I have no hesitation in pronouncing the rample made by it to be superior to that made by any Gin known to me. I have ginned as much as 350 bales of cotton—have had no repairing to do, and the Gin is now in perfect order. Its great improvement consists in its Revolving Head, which prevents cotton roil from breaking, and which completely destroys the friction produced by cotton box, thereby increasing its speed, preventing injury to saws, and the sample from being gin-cut.

BEST MADE.

WILLIAMSTON, S. C., June 30, 1879. Messes, Bleckley, Brown & Co., Agents, Anderson, S. C.

Gentlemen: The Neblett & Good-rich Cotton Gin bought of you some three or four years ago was, and is, the best Cotton Gin, to my mind, that is sold in this Cotton Gin, to my mind, that is sold in this section of country. I have been a cotton producer and buyer of some experience, and can safely testify that the lint from the Neblett & Goodrich Gin, with a corresponding yield, is as fine as that of any other Gin sold in this section, with a decided difference in its favor with respect to its simplicity of construction, durability, price and light running features. I ginned six thousand pounds of seed cotton with this Gin in one day with horse-power on a forty-saw Gin. In other words, four five hundred pound bales of cotton.

J. W. DACUS.

I fully concur with Mr. Dacus in the above as to the quality of this Gin, and can say that it will do all that is recommended for it.
